Tying the knot with reassuring confidence during COVID-19

Never before in our recent history have we witnessed such a pandemic. As the nation returns to some semblance of what we all call the 'new normal' we wanted to reassure you that we are taking every imaginable precaution during these times. Your forever day means everything to us.

Firstly, stay calm. We've got this.

Goodness knows weddings can be stressful enough

Secondly, get creative with the format of your day

Depending on restrictions you may want to change the format of your day. Here are some of the latest trends:

Make it open air

Having your big day out in the open means your guests won't feel so confined

Honeymoon now. Party later

Some couples choose to tie the knot and wait for the big party, often choosing to honeymoon first before the shindig

Micro weddings

Keep it small. Maybe your big day is just reserved for family and your very, very closest friends

Shift weddings

Spread the love throughout the weekend. It keeps the party numbers down. Good for keeping fueling relatives apart too

Stay in touch with your wedding co-ordinator

The government guidelines are changing daily, your trusted and friendly wedding co-ordinator is fully up to speed with the latest restrictions. Just give her a call or an email
